Global Markets Summary

May 2018

Asset Class Returns

Source: Morningstar

Key: Left Bar: Recent Month
Right Bar: Year-To-Date

Fixed Income

- The 10-year U.S. Treasury fell 9 bps to end the month at 2.86%.
- The decline in yield was a direct benefit to bond prices as the Barclays Agg gained during the month along with TIPS and Munis.
- Unhedged indices fell as emerging markets currencies took center focus. A rally in the dollar caused emerging indices to fall as the market digested their prospects under tighter U.S. policy.

Equities

- Domestic equities moved higher with smaller capitalization companies significantly outperforming large cap names. Growth equities tended to outperform value-oriented names.
- International names were lower as France and Germany both fell. Within emerging markets, Brazil and Mexico were the largest decliners. Fresh news of additional political scandals peppering the headlines in Brazil led to declines.

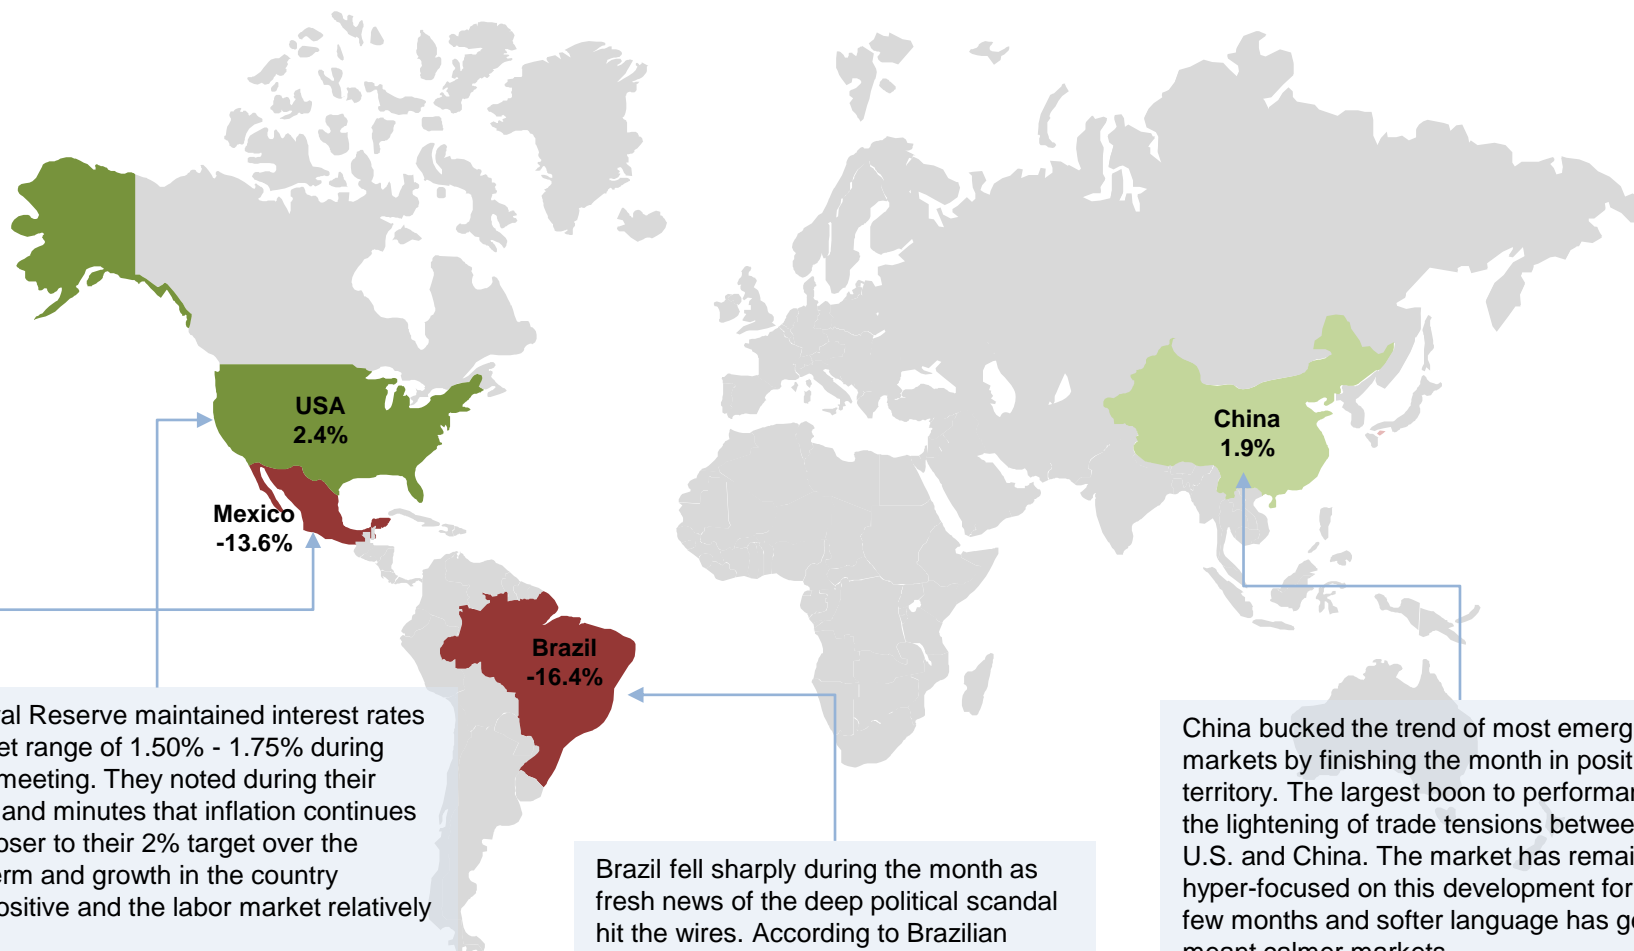

Real Assets

- All asset classes within real assets finished in positive territory during the month.
- MLPs were the strongest performer within real assets as energy prices remained firmly higher and the space was absent significant negative news. Some consolidation occurred amongst GPs and LPs as MLPs remain near historical lows.
- Domestic REITs outperformed international as fundamentals remain strong and supply in check.

Global Highlights

May 2018

The Federal Reserve maintained interest rates in the target range of 1.50% - 1.75% during their May meeting. They noted during their statement and minutes that inflation continues to trend closer to their 2% target over the medium term and growth in the country remains positive and the labor market relatively tight.

Mexico fell 13.6% during the month as the far-left presidential candidate, Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador (also known as AMLO), pulled to a significant lead in the polls. His policies are widely viewed as negative for the economy.

Brazil fell sharply during the month as fresh news of the deep political scandal hit the wires. According to Brazilian newspaper O Globo, President Michael Temer gave his blessing in an attempt to pay a potential witness to remain silent during the country's recent probe into political corruption scandal.

China bucked the trend of most emerging markets by finishing the month in positive territory. The largest boon to performance was the lightening of trade tensions between the U.S. and China. The market has remained hyper-focused on this development for the past few months and softer language has generally meant calmer markets.
